Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

November is not the last month of the calendar year. That honor, of course, falls to the month of December. But in the Church Year, November is the month in which we do speak of “last things.” As we know, the season of Advent marks the beginning of the Church Year. And Advent begins either on the last Sunday of November or the first Sunday of December, depending on the given year. It always has struck me as kind of odd how the Church Year seems to be off a month. It would make more sense for the Church to speak of “last things” in December, and for Advent to start around January 1st. But that just isn’t the case.

Regardless, during the month of November the Church focuses on “last things.” For instance, on November 1st the Church observes All Saints’ Day, with the first Sunday in November being All Saints’ Sunday. On that day we remember the members of the Church who have died and have entered the Church Triumphant. All Saints’ is about those who have lived out the LAST of their days on earth and now shine in glory.

And then there is Christ the King Sunday which marks the end of the Church Year. On this day, we remember the LAST day of the Church Year. It is also a day in which we imagine the time when Christ will come in the LAST days to reign as King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Christ the King imagines the vision of God’s eternal reign.

Aside from these festivals that occur in November, November is also filled with last things in other ways. The month of November marks when the LAST of the harvest is gathered in before the onset of winter, and indeed many congregations will celebrate the ingathering of God’s gifts around the time of Thanksgiving.

In November, there is also the LAST days of extended light. Daylight Saving Time ends on November 6th, at which time we will turn our clock’s back an hour. We get an extra hour of sleep that night, but sunset will be even earlier, making the night time seem even darker and longer.

For me, I have grown to love the month of November. I like this month when it seems we have the LAST bit of color on the trees, and the LAST bit of green in the landscape before it becomes brown and then white with snow. I love the “feel” of November with all its LAST things.

But please don’t take what I say as though I see everything as bleak. Quite the opposite, with all these “LASTS” comes also a strong sense of hope. It is like the image of that LAST acorn the squirrel gathers before winter so that the squirrel has hope enough now to sustain its life through until Spring. That is the same type of hope that accompanies all the LASTS in November, so that we know that God is sustaining us spiritually, physically, etc. to bring us to that Spring, to that New Life. Thanks be to God.

So, I hope this November is a blessing to all of us. Enjoy the month and may the power of its message of LASTS give you hope.

In Christ, Pastor Joel Petruschke

About Worship

It is good to remind ourselves that worship does not happen in a vacuum. That is to say, worship is only possible because of other people. And this is certainly true when it comes to the preparation of the chancel area for Sunday worship. Indeed, our church is blessed with faithful members who are part of our Altar Guild Committee, who make sure the worship space up front is ready for service.

The Altar Guild Committee prepares the altar for worship, setting out the bread and wine and communion vessels for the sacrament. And after worship, the Altar Guild Committee takes care of cleaning up the altar. The Altar Guild Committee changes the paraments on the altar, the pulpit, and the lectern to align with the color of the day. The Altar Guild Committee arranges the flowers in the altar vases. The Altar Guild Committee makes sure the altar candles and the candelabra up front have enough oil. The Altar Guild Committee helps with other decorations in the sanctuary during the year, such as the arrangement of the Christmas poinsettias and the Easter flowers. The Altar Guild Committee makes sure there is water in the baptismal font when a baptism is scheduled. The Altar Guild Committee does a lot of behind-the-scenes work. And we are very grateful for all they do.

With all this said, I remind us of the phrase "Many hands make light work." I remind us of this phrase because the number of members on the Altar Guild Committee is dwindling, and we need more hands. Currently, we have three teams on Altar Guild who rotate throughout the year to oversee the Altar Guild responsibilities for four months. We are in need of additional Altar Guild members with the hope of bolstering the existing teams, as well as forming an additional team. Again, the hope is to share the responsibilities of Altar Guild, and to lighten the work of all who are on the Altar Guild Committee.

We all are blessed by the work of Altar Guild. We like having the candles lit during worship, which would not happen except for Altar Guild. We all like having communion, which again would not happen except for Altar Guild. I could go on and on. But we need to help support the work of Altar Guild. Please consider serving on the Altar Guild Committee. See the announcement below for additional information. Thank you.

Attention All Church Members

The Altar Guild Committee is in great need of additional members. Unfortunately, we have lost several long-time members in the last two years. It is not a difficult task but we need reliable members since we have weekly communion set up. Training will be provided. The more members we have means less work and time are required. Please call Barb if you are interested. Any questions, please talk to Donna Miller or Linda Schreier. Thank you from the committee for your consideration to join.

Manna Food Pantry

Our "2nd Sunday" food collection is still ongoing. During this time of continuous rising food prices & heating costs, food pantries are seeing a greater demand of their services. If you would like to make a donation you may bring your items into the church & place them on the table in the Narthex at any time. There is a list of suggested items now on the table. If you would like to make a monetary donation, please mark your envelopes "Manna Food Pantry" and place it with your regular giving envelope.

A Word on Stewardship

Recently in Adult Sunday School we got into a great discussion about whether or not it is okay to question God, whether it is okay to question what we have been taught about our faith. The question came up when we were talking about the book of Job. In that book of the Bible, the character Job puts God on trial, and Job questions why God allows him to suffer at the hands of Satan. And so, we talked about how Christians are often taught as young children to simply believe and accept what they taught about the Faith. We are taught that a solid faith is one that doesn't question what it has come to know.

And I then shared with the Sunday School class how my seminary training was like theological boot camp, where as students we were broken down. All that we were taught about the Faith was challenged and stripped away so that our faith could be built up again. In part, what seminary wanted to teach us was to claim the Faith for ourselves. The faith with which we came out of seminary was a tested faith, a refined faith, a matured faith. It was a faith that we seminarians could call our own.

I learned today that according to PEW Research 45% of mainline Christians, of which we Lutherans are a part, fall away from the Faith that we were brought up to know. Some of those Christians become "evangelical Christians," while others become "nones," in which they don't associate with any Christian denomination at all. Why does this happen? Why do so many fall away from their childhood Faith? It may very well be that we don't teach our young people, and not so young alike, how to claim the Faith for themselves. We don't teach people how to make the Faith their own.

Young people are often exposed to various philosophies and ideologies in college. Young people often have their eyes opened in college such that they see the inconsistencies, the holes, and otherwise flaws in the Bible. And it can certainly rattle a person's faith, and can make an individual question the validity of God's Word. Life, too, can throw hardships and difficulties at a person, such that one is uncertain about God's power at work in the world. And so, it is understandable how people can be swayed to give up the Faith of their childhood. The Church needs to respond to such crises of faith. The Church needs to help individuals, to assure people that it is okay to have questions, and that through those questions and the answers one finds, one's Faith may become all the stronger because it has become one's own.

This is the great stewardship question of our time perhaps. How do we help people claim the Faith for themselves? I believe it starts by being like Job. It starts when we can assure people that it is okay to challenge God, that it is okay even to question God. Even our Lord and Savior challenged and questioned God. Jesus from the cross uttered that question that has become immortalized: "My God, my God, why have you forsaken?" And it is not that Jesus was shaken in his faith when he said that, but that Jesus' faith was all the stronger because he could so boldly and faithfully direct his anguished question to God. Jesus' faith was elevated in his heartfelt question, and our faith is elevated too when we can express what is deeply in our hearts.

Jesus Said, "Let the Little Children Come to Me."

On October 2nd we successfully revived Sunday School for the children of Our Saviour. The first lesson was on Creation and the children completed a craft and enjoyed a snack. As a reminder, children's Sunday School class will be held on the first Sunday of the month during the service. The next class will be November 6th. Children will be excused for their lesson after the children's message. Please share our news with anyone you know who may be interested. We welcome every child to join us and learn!

WE ARE EXCITED TO HAVE GOTTEN STARTED. OUR CHILDREN ARE AN INTEGRAL PART OF OUR CONGREGATION.

Dear Padre,

Given that this month we celebrate Thanksgiving, I would like to know why we should give thanks to God? What purpose does it serve? After all, God is still God, whether we thank God or not. Perhaps we are just serving to inflate God's ego by giving thanks to God. It just seems strange that God would desire or even demand our thanks. Psalm 50:23 says, "Those who bring thanksgiving as their sacrifice honor me (God)."

Signed, An Inquirer

Dear "Inquirer,"

You have a good point about why God desires or needs our thanks. My own personal opinion is that our action of giving thanks to God says more about who we are than it does about who God is. For those who give thanks are persons who acknowledge that they themselves need grace. We can't do it alone. We don't do it alone. And by "it" I mean carry on in life. There is something larger than ourselves, whether we speak of that something as the community of human beings, or the bountiful earth that gives of its resources, or the God who creates all things good and for our benefit. We can't do it alone, and so we learn to give thanks for whatever help and blessings we receive in life. We need and survive by grace.

The Thanksgiving holiday, therefore, has always seemed to me to be one of the most religious of all days on the calendar. Because here we have a day in which everyone is expected to stop and pause and give thanks. Here we have a holiday in which everyone, regardless of one's religious preferences, acknowledges their need for grace. The Thanksgiving holiday is what religion should be about—people coming together to share a meal and to give thanks.

As to why God is depicted as needing and as pleased with our offerings of thanks, I would suggest that our forebears of the faith projected our human aspects onto God. For who among us doesn't want to be thanked? Who among us doesn't expect to be thanked when we have helped others? So, one would assume that God would too.

Thank you for your question. I hope this answer helps. And Happy Thanksgiving.

Signed, Padre
